DECLINING EMPLOYEE PERFORMANCE?

Recent Trends and Employee Performance

Presented By:

Ms. Amy Magas

EMPLOYEE ASSISTANCE COUNSELOR, MCLAUGHLIN YOUNG GROUP

Workplace issues and external issues can impact employee performance, and they both tend to escalate during a recession. Employees struggle with uncertainty at work and the impact of downsizing and fewer resources. They may also have financial, family, or substance abuse issues within their circle outside of work. Managers, supervisors, and human resource professionals are often the first to observe changes in the work environment and employee behavior. Join us for an informative session about recent workplace trends and the impact on employee performance.

- Common warning signs to monitor when performance begins to decline
• Ways to address factors inside and outside the workplace that impact employee performance
• Resources to assist with improving or maintaining employee performance
• Tips on how to support employees and improve morale
